December 2018

Beers on Tap

1. Golden Eagle - 5.5% - Golden Ale: Brewed with our local university in mind, light in color, but a fully balanced beer with subtle hop notes and a delicious malt background. You can find this in the pub or in the President's Tent at Memorial Stadium on CU game day.

2. Iron Furnace - 5.0% - American Pale Ale: Small on hop bitterness and big on bold citrus flavor thanks to large amounts of American hops used at the end of the brewing process.

3. 1841 Amber - 5.7% - Amber Lager: A darker brew, this lager brings together a tasty balance of hop and malt.

4. Leatherwood - 5.6% - Brown Ale: Sweet like candy with an alcohol kick, with caramel notes carrying you to mild burnt bitter finish from the signature roasted barley.

5. Autumn Leaf Fiest - 6.4% - Traditional German Marzen brewed for the Oktoberfest. The amber color and the use of noble German hops make this a fall favorite.

6. 4.1 GPA - 5.7% - Brewed at North Country Brewing Company, this Guava Pale Ale is the second in the series of collaboration beers between North Country, Leivity and CRBC. It houses aromas of mango, peach, passion fruit, and guava. It also contains lactose.

7. Clarion Normal IPA - 6.5% - A hoppy traditional IPA blended with 7C's hops and a good amount of Centennial hops. We went big instead of going home on the IBUs and cranked this one to 100.

8. Michelle's Main St. - 6.8% - Brewed with 7 pounds of Michelle's Clarion Blend, this brew has notes of roasted coffee and a slightly sweet finish. It's on Nitro, so it has that creamy mouthfeel, too.

Have you studied enough yet?

To the right is the December Crowler image. Here is your hint:

If you go to this state, you don't have to change the time on your watch and be sure to pack a warm jacket if you are going soon.
